DISHMAN SPRINGS HOTEL FORMALLY OPENED MONDAY

"There was a sound of revelry by night and 'Knox County's' capital had gathered there in its beauty and its chivalry."

Dishman Springs formal opening on Monday night was a distinct success with some two hundred guests present.

Looking up as they rounded the bend the visitors saw a brilliantly lighted building and on arrival the guests were warmly welcomed by the host, W. M. Dishman, and were introduced to as fine a dinner as ever graced a festive board. Meanwhile, the Oxley Orchestra, of Knoxville, filled the room with the best music in their repertoire.

Prominent citizens and their ladies pitched in earnestly on the contents of the well stocked plates of viands which were set before them, showing thereby that the cook and the object which the cook had cooked met with their hearty approval. The entrees proved equally alluring and received the same rapt attention which had been paid the more bulky rations. All of which means that the dinner was fit for the most fastidious epicure and that it was eaten in a spirit of appreciation which guaranteed a first class digestion.

Altho spacious, so great was the number that the dining room was filled with several relays of guests who kept coming in during the two hours during which the dinner was served.

Mayor T. D. Tinsley, who has a happy vein of wit stored away in his judicial makeup, was chosen to deliver the toast to the management and did it very happily.

After dinner the tables were removed from the dining room and the orchestra struck up dance music to which young people and elders responded and feet were soon tripping gaily over the smooth floor in all the abandon of a good time. The dance continued until the wee, sma' hours of the morning when the guests wished the management the best of success and thanks for a lovely night of pleasure.

The new hotel is delightfully appointed, all the bedrooms being out side rooms opening on the spacious porches which run entirely around the building. The lighting plant runs perfectly and makes a flood of brilliance in the midst of the quiet wooded hills. The hotel offers every convenience to visitors and, with its excellent mineral waters as an added incentive, should be full of appreciative guests the season thru.

The citizens of Barbourville should not only make use of Dishman Springs for their own pleasure times, but should tell their friends about it. It can be made a good business asset for the city since the visitor to the Springs is sure to do some shopping in Barbourville.

Let each one constitute himself a committee of one to make our new resort the best known in Kentucky. Mr. Dishman will assuredly do his part.

NEW BUS LINE

The Boone Trail Bus Line to Corbin and Wilton has been inaugurated and will make regular trips to Corbin and Wilton via Dishman Springs. The following will be the schedule:

Leaves Barbourville 8 a.m.
Arrives Dishman Springs 8:30 a.m.
Ar Wilton 9:15 a.m.
Ar Corbin 9:45 a.m.
Lv Corbin 10:35 a.m.
Ar Wilton 11 a.m.
Lv Wilton 11:30 a.m.
Ar Corbin 12 noon
Lv Corbin 1:30 p.m.
Ar Wilton 2:00 p.m.
Ar Dishman Springs 3:15 p.m.
Ar Barbourville 3:15 p.m.
Special trips anywhere by appointment.

Headquarters will be with Broyles & Co., next door to the Bowman Ice Cream Plant on Allison Avenue.

The new bus line will be a tremendous convenience to the route which is unserved by a railroad and should do a big business. The merchants of Barbourville should get behind the new bus line and give it every assistance in their power as it opens new trade territory for them which has hitherto been practically untouched.

Mr. Broyles is a most accommodating citizen and will do all in his power to make patrons of the new bus can carry ten passengers.

BANTAM AND RAT WAGE WAR TO THE DEATH

A most singular combat was staged at the home of Charlie Smith on Pine Street a day or two ago when a rat, intrigued by the chicks of a bantam hen, attacked them. The mother hen immediately went to the rescue and all that was seen was the feathered bantam covering the rat and pecking violently at the intruder. The rat put up a hard fight but the little bantam pecked the eyes of its enemy and then proceeded to peck out its brains. The rat proved to be the heavier in weight by one and one half ounces. The fight was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. James M. Wilson.

UNION COLLEGE GAMES

Union College baseball team has returned from a trip to Carson Newman, Tusculum and Milligan colleges and they were unsuccessful in winning a game due to the fact that their opponents are employing paid players. This is regrettable in college sports, except in the case of a trainer, as the sport ideal is lost in the desire to win. To win with known superior forces means nothing.

DR. J. A. GRAY SIGNS CHAUTAUQUA CONTRACT

Dr. J. A. Gray has signed up a seven weeks contract with the Independent Chautauqua Company on the de luxe circuit. His first speaking date will be June 10th. His tour will take him thru a number of northern states. —Middlesboro Daily News.

The End of a Perfect Day

GRADUATION TIME

This is the season of the graduate. A number of young people have finished the grind of the schools and unless they go on toward a still higher education will enter into business. They are now "on their own" and must begin to fight the battle of life for themselves. Whatever school has done for them, what ever their moral fibre, will be demonstrated in what they henceforth think and do. It is pathetic but true that Nature, apart from Nature's God, wastes her human product, as she wastes the products of the field, but it is important to the graduate to grasp the fundamental truth that there are certain essential qualities and attributes which will make a success of life in its best sense aret hey but followed.

Honesty must be a part of character if one would succeed in being a real man or woman, irrespective of how large is one's bank account. The strong man or woman must respect the spoken word or promise, the signature put to paper, the property of another. The crook is to society what the deadly rattlesnake is with its poisonous fangs, except that the rattlesnake is more honest in that it gives warning of its intention to harm, whereas the crook does not.

Truth, beautiful in its relation to Him who is unchanging and absolutely dependable, will be treasured by every graduate who would succeed in living a life of honor. The liar is one of the most contemptible of creatures. Unstable as a broken reed; deceitful of tongue; nothing to such a one is truth, since the truth is not in him. To take his word is to take something which is base and degenerate. The liar has been singled out as among those for whom hell will yawn and no wonder for in him the real essentials of decency do not exist. He is a moral leper and unclean of soul. An unbending regard for truth will help every graduate to look mankind in the face with clear, smiling eyes and will keep their feet on solid ground.

Cleanliness of mind should be practiced. The mystery of life is many sided and that which should be regarded as wonderful too often becomes a low vice. Keep the mind clean by study of what is pure and beautiful. The wandering imagination may be controlled, the lips may be kept closed against the filth and obscenity which too often pass for the highest form of wit. Enjoy life, but enjoy it as something given by the Creator for the furtherance of his work.

Practice courtesy. Courtesy is the kindly thought put into deeds. Honor those at home first of all, then let it spread to the outsider. Give respect to women and to those who are old. Kindness shown in courtesy builds the character into the perfect lady or gentleman. The lack of courtesy stamps one as wanting in the finer things of life. Courtesy is the hall mark of chivalry.

Concentration is shown in one's studies. The boy or girl who would succeed must be able to bend and keep the mind on the task in hand. The will to do must be actively employed. Carelessness has wrecked trains, steamships, business concerns and careers. Don't be impatient but patient. Knowledge comes by concentration and practice. Development of the mind follows and the strong, upstanding character such as we know and admire, is the result.

Remember that it takes a lifetime to make and keep a splendid character.

One crooked act may wreck it. The bone of your bone and flesh of your flesh, your father and your mother should see you advance from strength to strength into perfect manhood or womanhood. They sacrificed much for you.

Society needs you as a strong link in the advancement of human happiness.

The Creator should be honored in His handiwork.

The greatest thing in life is a square, clean man or a gentle virtuous woman.

They redeem humanity.

TUESDAY CLUB

Met March 21 with Mrs. A. W. Hopper. Subject: Henry Ford. Mrs. Ed Faulkner; Muscle Shoals, Mrs. Fred Burman. Visitors were present at the social hour which was enjoyed by all.

Met April 11th with Mrs. B. P. Jones. Leader, Mrs. Hugh Oldfield. Subject: The British Empire. (a) The British Lion's Restless Brood; (b) America's Attitude toward Great Britain. Mrs. Guy Dickinson. An illustrated trip thru the possessions of Great Britain. Mrs. Oldfield Mrs. Jake Rasnick, a guest, helped members pass a pleasant social hour.

Met April 18th with Mrs. W. S. Hudson. Leader, Mrs. J. O. Gross. Subject: Music. Eika Monna, Mrs. Wm. Black. Mrs. W. H. Buck gave a musical sketch of Charles Gounod's Faust, first giving a short biography of the composers life, following with a condensed story of the opera accompanied with piano selections taken from the most thrilling scenes of the opera.

Vocal solos: (a) Mission of a Rose, (b) Calm as the Night, Mrs. Gross. Each member was then requested by the leader to sing a favorite song. Every member responded as they always do which furnished a great deal of fun for not all of the members possess the ability of Mrs. Gross and Mrs. Buck. With other guests Mrs. Madden, of Hays, Kansas, a former member of the club, was able to be present. Mrs. Chappelle, of Corbin, helped her sister with the social hour.

Met May 2nd with Mrs. Guy L. Dickinson. Mrs. Fred Burman, was leader. Subject: Civil Service, Protecting National Forests from Fire. Mrs. John G. Tye; Civil Service, Mrs. Burman; Continuation of selections from the opera Faust, Mrs. Buck. Guests were entertained during the social hour.

Met May 16th with Mrs. F. D. Sampson. Leader, Mrs. John W. Hughes. Subject: Tennyson. Life of Tennyson, Mrs. Hughes; Idyls of the King, Mrs. J. R. Tuggle; The Princess, Mrs. Hugh Oldfield. Three new members were added to the club list. Guests were present. The hostess served delicious guinea salad assisted by her daughter, Miss Emoline.

CLOUSE

The death of John C. Clouse of Big Richland occurred on Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, the funeral being held Monday afternoon. A wife and family survive.

SERIES OF ROAD MEETINGS

Judge J. T. Stamper, Ray B. Ballard and W. W. Evans have all participated in good roads meetings over the county. These have been held in Union Church house near Corbin, at the Baptist Church house on Barbourville Hill, at the Methodist Church house on Moores Hill, at Trosper, Brush Creek and one at Warren. The object of the meetings was to organize the men on the different roads permitting them to appoint road committees of their own choosing who were to co-operate with the overseers on the different sections in repairing and maintaining the roads. The interest is splendid and Judge Stamper has never seen such enthusiasm for road building in his life. The great majority of the men on the sections connected with the above named meetings voted to pay $2 per day for each day a man was required to work on the roads instead of doing the work themselves, paying the money to the overseer, who turns it over to the committee. The treasurer then pays out the money when the work is done under the supervision of the overseer and County Road Engineer Ballard.

The meeting on Moores Hill was an outstanding success. Supt. W. W. Evans made an excellent talk to an audience of approximately two hundred people, and he was followed by Judge Stamper. At the close of the Judge's address a subscription was taken to pay the construction of a new road around Moores Hill (just this side of Corbin) and $300 were taken which will be more than enough to build the road. The surplus will be spent in repairing the old road between the foot of Moores Hill and the bridge across Lynn Camp Creek. Judge Stamper intends to continue holding these meetings as opportunity affords thruout the entire county until Knox County ceases to be distinguished for bad roads.

KIWANIS MEET

Kiwanis met at the Jones Hotel Friday night and a real constructive get together was the result. A number of subjects touching on the improvement of the town and this section of Kentucky were talked over. Among these were drainage for the city, good roads, a trade carnival, improvement of the road to the cemetery, a national park for Eastern Kentucky on the boundary of Tennessee and Kentucky, a new depot, a university at Barbourville, ornamental lights around the Court House, patronizing home industries, sewers for the whole town, pay the band, repair city streets that need it and more paved streets, cannery. Here is a list from which Kiwanis may make a choice. All are good but all cannot be taken up at one time.

That the Kiwanis will tackle some of these problems is certain as they are builders and are going to live up to their slogan.

The buddies should remember to keep in touch with each meeting night.

AGAIN SIR CONAN IS IUT-DYLED

Sir Conan Doyle was out "Doyled" with a vengeance and his "pet" theories regarding communication with the spirit world were struck squarely amidships and shattered by a direct hot fired by Arthur Ford of Kentucky last night at a meeting held in a room of the Farragut Hotel and attended by a group of psychology students from the University of Tennessee.

Mr. Ford, working under test conditions, produced most of the phenomena connected with spiritism. Table lifting, slate writing and cabinet work were all demonstrated under conditions imposed by the students themselves, thus showing how easy it is for the professional medium to dupe those persons who visit the seance rooms.

After the demonstration Mr. Ford explained each test and the principles underlying all the physical phenomena of spiritism. The lecturer holds that 99 per cent of all such work is fraud of the simplest kind and that spiritism never has produced a test that cannot be explained upon purely naturalistic grounds and reproduced by anyone of ordinary intelligence.—The Journal and Tribune, Knoxville, Tenn.

THE BACCALAUREATE SERVICE

The Baccalaureate service of the Barbourville High School was held at the Christian Church on Sunday morning, all the churches participating. The choir, which was a composite one from the various congregations, led excellently and the people joined in singing most heartily. Miss Mary McDermott on the violin and Mrs. Dan H. Herndon, accompanist, rendered "Meditation" from Thais very beautifully. Mrs. Chas. F. Rathfon sang "Thoughts for Others" in a most expressive manner. Mrs. J. A. McDermott was in charge of the organ and Everett Hutton played the cornet.

The address by Rev. A. A. Ford on "Things That Abide" was pregnant with thought and was so simply delivered that the young people to whom it was specially directed, might clearly understand and apply its lessons to their daily lives. The things which the speaker said abide are God, Christ, the Bible, the Church, Faith and Service.

PLAY AT B. B. I.

On Tuesday evening the attractive comedy, "Untangling Tony," will be staged under the direction of Miss Hazel Oliver at the B. B. I. Auditorium. A small admission will be charged. From past experience of the entertainments put on we can promise the public a well-spent and entertaining evening.

Helen Lawson and Helen Cawn were seated on the door step of the Gibson store. Helen Lawson remarked to Helen Cawn, "I love God," to which Helen Cawn replied "I love everybody but God best of all." Out of the mouths of babes.

New Problems

in industry and commerce are arising every day. The business man who plans for success will welcome sound business counsel and helpful co-operation.

The First National Bank is especially fortunate in that its directorate is representative of many and diversified interests, and its officers are business men as well as bankers.

This fact, together with its large resources, complete facilities, and FEDERAL RESERVE MEMBERSHIP enable it to render service of exceptional value.

STRENUOUS ADVOCATE

The Mountain Advocate of Barbourville preaches the gospel of good roads with feeling:

Men who believe in good roads to organize for good roads, to work for good roads and if necessary to pray for good roads in the churches for good roads will fill them.

Farmers, merchants, teachers, women's clubs, preachers, in fact every citizen, regardless of age, creed or politics, is needed to become a crank on the good roads question.

Bad roads must go. Talk good roads with your neighbors and let us all pull, push, kick, bite and scratch if necessary to do away with Kentucky's worst curse, bad roads.

Then may your children rise up and call you worthy ancestors!

Barbourville is a trim college town in a charming situation insofar as environment goes. But in the matter of roads to and thru adjacent counties it is ill served.

It is tantalizing to a center of population which manufactures spokes for automobiles to be imprisoned by bad roads.

The Mountain Advocate is a strenuous advocate of improvement whose mood none can fail to understand and with whose warmth nobody who is reasonable will fail to sympathize.

By the way, the State press can,
and the State press must, do a good deal of missionary work among the people if we are to see in Kentucky development of a sufficient settlement for a Statewide system of roads.

It will be necessary to pull, push,
kick, bite and scratch.

A spirit in which even party tickets will be scratched if need be and politicians kicked, and progressive men and women pulled into political races and pushed into office, is needed.—Louisville Courier-Journal

RECITAL WEDNESDAY NIGHT

On Wednesday night the pupils of Mrs. W. H. Buck, piano, and of Miss Hazel Oliver, expression, gave a recital at the High School Auditorium which brought forth many expressions of praise. Mrs. Buck's skill in handling beginners was clearly demonstrated in the playing of the little folks while the more advanced pupils performed with assurance and skill. The readings were well rendered and received hearty applause. Mrs. J. O. Gross sang two solos pleasing the audience as she always does with her sweet singing.

FREE LECTURE AT MASONIC HALL

Saturday Evening at 7 o'clock
John W. Juett, D. D. S., of Eminence, Ky., will deliver a lecture on France before and after the World War, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. The lecturer will illustrate with stereopticon views and will show many places of interest in connection with France.
The public is cordially invited to be present.

CIVIC LEAGUE

The Civic League met in regular session on the 11th of May at the home of Mrs. W. W. Tinsley with a good number in attendance.
The subject uppermost for discussion was a vault at the cemetery which the ladies have decided must be built. The road out to the cemetery will receive attention.
Mrs. C. F. Rathfon and Mrs. C. P. Kennedy assisted in serving a delightful salad course during the customary social hour.
The next meeting will be on the 25th at the home of Mrs. F. D. Samson.

THAT DULL ACHING

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and aching backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Read this statement:
Mrs. Herbert Miller, Allison Ave. says: "I think Doan's Kidney Pills are fine for backache and I gladly recommend them. Not long ago I had an attack of backache. There was a dull nagging pain in the small of my back and I had sharp, stinging pains in my side that hurt dreadfully when I was doing my housework. If I stooped over I would get dizzy and specks came before my eyes. Doan's Kidney Pills have put a stop to the trouble and I can tell anyone they are all that is claimed for them."
Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Miller had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

GOLF CLUB SHEEP ARE KILLED BY DOGS

The Boone Trail Golf Club and Jones & Brown have a number of sheep grazing on the links and on Sunday dogs killed eleven of them. This is where the dog tax will be called on to pay for the dead sheep. It is also a proof that while a bunch of dogs are allowed to roam the country sheep should be corralled during the night as is done in the countries subject to attacks by wolves.

There has been much written on the virtues of Old Tige, but when it comes to sheep raising, he is an unmitigated nuisance when he once takes to chasing sheep.

NEW CANDY KITCHEN

Robert McKeehan, of Barbourville, and T. G. Gibson, of Four Mile, have put in a candy kitchen, lunch room, soft drinks and ice cream establishment in the building formerly occupied by the Barbourville Electric Company on Main Street. The new owners expect to put in a first class line of every thing and to make the restaurant feature one of the drawing cards of the new concern. Sunday dinners will be served to take the place of Sunday cooking at home. Extreme cleanliness will be observed and no smoking will be permitted during meal hours. Tobacco will not be handled in any form.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday School at 9:45.
There will be no service at the church in the morning. The congregation will worship with the Baptists Sunday being the day of their Baccalaureate.
Evening service at 7:30. The pastor, Rev. John Owen Gross, will preach.

Deputy Tom Phillips and others took a still near Watch postoffice, about three miles from Corbin on last Tuesday. It was found on the Spence Norval place, but he is in no way connected with the presence of the still.

Broyles & Co., formerly to be found at the Buchanan Motors, is now domiciled in the building next to the Bowman Ice Cream Plant. The company is prepared to do machine and shop welding or anything that has to do with machines of and kind.

The Clear Tone Music Company now has installed a large radio-phonograph and Arthur Cole, of Harlan, has been demonstrating. The Sunday sermon was clearly audible. An amplifier will be received later when the factory has caught up on its orders.

Company G., 149th Inf. went up to Warren Sunday and played the Warren team. Company G team won by a score of 9 to 3 after a most exciting game. Goebel Haun pitched and Reedy Miller caught for our boys. Woolum pitched for Warren, McKeehan catching.

A. J. Croley, John C. Croley, Judge J. D. Tuggle and Judge Josh Tye were in London last week in connection with the case Croley vs. Jackson Coal Mining Co. This is for the continuance of a lease and the evidence is up to Judge Cochran for his decision. Mayor T. D. Tinsley was the Jackson attorney.

One of the city prisoners, Travis Rose, of Wilton, who has been at work on the roads, ran away from the guard Friday but was captured by Jailor West who ran him down in an automobile when about one and a half miles from Wilton. He then refused to work on the roads but later agreed to do so after being put in solitary confinement.

WHY HER WATCH GOES WRONG

Various Causes Given for Undoubted Fact That Woman's Timepiece is Generally Incorrect.

Punctuality is said to be the virtue of kings, but not of women. The latter will not, however, admit their lack of it. But when a lady has kept a mere man waiting for her an indefinitely long time her excuse, cynics declare, is really at hand: "My watch must be wrong." And, strange to say, this reason given as an excuse, different from other excuses, is almost always valid. The watches of women are much less exact than those of men.

An Englishman, Herbert Duke, who occupied himself with this problem in profound speculations, thinks he has traced it to its source. He has observed that the same watch, when worn by his wife, runs very irregularly, whereas when worn by him it is perfectly correct. "Now, how is it," he asks, "that so many women have such a baleful influence on watches?"

Certainly much is due to the fact that to women the watch is a less necessary tool of life than a beautiful adornment; that they care more for its looking elegant on the wrist than for its being right; that they handle carelessly and inconsiderately this delicate apparatus.

But there must be another more potent cause. It has been observed that the electricity contained in the human body exerts a direct influence on the delicate mechanism of the watch. It may be that the small form of a woman's watch renders it very sensitive to the electro-magnetic influence that emanates from the body.

SNAKES HAVE LARGE 'LITTERS'

Boa Constrictor, in Captivity, Gave Birth to Sixty-Four Living Young—Others Prolific.

The sixteen-foot Trinidad anaconda, or water boa, at the London Zoological gardens, not long ago gave birth to twenty-four young ones. The newborn snakes were twenty-six inches long and about an inch in diameter at the thickest part of the body. In color and marking they resembled the adults—that is, they were of a dark greenish hue with black spots.

That number of young had been exceeded by a seventeen-foot snake at the New York Zoological park, which produced thirty-four young. Still another anaconda has been known to produce thirty-seven at a birth, and a large specimen of boa constrictor gave birth to sixty-four living young. The pythons differ from the boas in that they lay eggs and coil around a heap of them until they hatch. An official of the New York Zoo says that the pythons produce from fifty to a hundred eggs at a time, and a specimen of python reticulatus deposited sixty eggs, about which she coiled, and from which she fought off all intruders, but her efforts proved of no avail, for the eggs were infertile.

FATHERS OF MEN

"T HERE is much truth in the old saying, 'As the twig is bent, so the tree inclines,'" observed the retired merchant. "If a boy inclined to crookedness grew up to be a straight and reliable man, it would be nothing short of a miracle. Therefore I tremble for the future of Spoonable's boy, William Henry. He seems to be just naturally vicious."

"You're full of excelsior," said the hotelkeeper politely. "All those chestnutty old sayings are fakes. The patriarchs used to be always saying that the boy is the father of the man, but he isn't; and he isn't grandmother to the man, either. You can't study a boy and predict what sort of a man he's going to be, any more than the official forecaster can examine his maps and charts and tell us what the weather will be like tomorrow."

"You observe that my larboard eye is somewhat discolored and I have a contusion on my brow, and my nose is slightly out of alignment. Yesterday I was prodding along a back street on a little errand, when I beheld a big, husky teamster pounding the sawdust out of a venerable horse that had seen better days. I went up to him and protested in the most courteous way, and he said it would afford him genuine pleasure to kick my spine up through my hat, if I didn't go my way and leave him alone. I informed him that if he hit that horse again I would push his countenance out of place, and he immediately clubbed the suffering animal harder than ever."

"I am glad to say that I succeeded in kicking most of the rind off the teamster's shins before he got me down and sat on my head, but I submit that a man who will take such chances as I did must have the cause of cruelty to animals much at heart. There's nothing makes my blood boil quicker than to see an animal abused."

"Well, when I was a boy I had a wide reputation for cruelty. I used to delight in tying tin cans to the tails of dogs, and in drowning cats, and in robbing birds' nests, and all such sinful pastimes. The moralists of that period agreed that I was entitled to the mantle of Nero, and that I would come to a bad end. Yet when I became old enough to have some sense, I made pets of all the dumb critters within eight miles."

"If that old maxim about the twig and the tree were any good, it ought to work both ways, and the saintly boy always would become a grand, good man. But as a rule the truly good boys don't amount to much in after life. Nearly all our useful citizens were hard citizens when they were boys, and the shiftless, no-account men were simply angelic when they went to school."

"A boy gets tired of being immaculate after he has tried it a few years, and he goes to the other extreme. And the boy who has been a horrible example ever since he left the cradle gets sick of that sort of thing when he has cut his wisdom teeth, and he becomes so virtuous that there's no living in the same block with him."

"Most of the old sayings are foolish and trifling, and I am surprised when a grown man goes around quoting them. Yet a lot of fellows think they have clinched an argument when they drag in a bewhiskered maxim. In order to show that Spoonable's boy is foredoomed, you spring that old wheeze about the twig and the tree. You might just as well say that Mary had a little lamb, and consider the argument closed."

"I know you are suffering to remind me that people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones, but I won't stand for it."

Cure for Flat Feet.

Are you flat-footed? If you don't know, the next time you take a bath, observe the impressions that your wet feet make. If your feet are normal, there will be a narrow line from heel to toe on the outside; if they are flat, the entire bottom of the foot will show.

How can you cure flat-footedness? Buy a handful of marbles, place them in two rows, and start picking them up with your toes. To do this you must curl up your toes; as a result the muscles of the feet will be exercised and thereby strengthened.—Popular Science Monthly.

And He Meant It, Too.

On Jimmie's return home from the birthday party of a girl in the neighborhood, he was telling his mother about her mother. When the children were leaving she asked them all to wish her little girl something nice.

Whereupon Jimmie's mother said to him: "I trust that my little boy wished the little girl something nice."

"O, yes," said Jimmie, still seeing visions of cake and ice cream: "I wished her that she'd soon have another birthday."

J. L. HEMPHILL WINS WINS CITY COMMISSIONER

J. L. Hemphill is the new city commissioner, elected Tuesday to succeed James K. Ross, present commissioner.

The deciding vote was five. The vote cast was 296 for Hemphill, 291 for Vandervort. The vote was light. The inclement weather prevented a number from voting, although several ears were running for each candidate.

John W. Vandervort, the defeated candidate ran ahead, it is said, the early part of the day. Vandervort has been commissioner before and came to Madill with its birth and was engaged in the mercantile business at Oakland before coming here. He was well known and had a large following.

J. L. Hemphill, the winner, won his majority at the close of the day. Hemphill is a new man in the affairs of the city. He is prominently identified with the work of the First Baptist Church and with both Eastern Star and Masonic activities. He came here about five years ago from Kentucky. He is the father of three children—Mrs. A. L. Cochran and Mrs. Rex Collins both of whom married since coming to Madill, and Joe, who is sophomore in the University of Oklahoma at Norman. He is foreman of the Frisco machine shops at this place.—Madill News, Madill, Okla.

OF PERCALE AND DIMITY

Polka dotted percale and white checked dimity make this pretty dress for little missy. It is in two pieces. The blouse of the dimity has a Peter Pan collar and turn-back cuffs adorned with feather stitching of silk floss. A white silk cord ending in small tassels is laced across the front of the bodice and a patch pocket at one side maintains that practical things can be pretty.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE XXXV.—W. VIRGINIA

AS THE name implies, West Virginia was originally a portion of Virginia, the Old Dominion Colony. While its history is naturally yoked up with that of the Mother State, there are many points in which the two sections of Virginia were divergent and it was for this reason that West Virginia finally became a separate state.

The first white man who probably penetrated the wilderness of this Western region was John Laderer, a German surgeon, who went on a tour of exploration in 1699. In the same year, La Salle sailed up the Ohio and landed at several points in the present state. There was little colonization until 1732, when Scotch and Irish adventurers began to fill Western Virginia. They were encouraged but little, and, in fact, the King in 1733 declared that this part of the colony was Indian country and could not rightfully be settled. Colonization continued, however, and bitter warfare was waged against the Indians and the French who had come down from the North. In 1774 the battle of Pt. Pleasant was fought, which was one of the bloodiest of Indian conflicts.

The backwoodsmen who settled in the Western part of Virginia were entirely different types of men from the wealthy slave owners along the coast. Jealousies between the two sections arose and the Western countries felt great dissatisfaction at the way Virginia was governing them. The most marked point of disagreement was over the slavery question, and it was because of this that, when Virginia seceded from the Union in 1861, West Virginia took matters in its own hands. Delegates met at Wheeling, drew up a separate constitution, and declared their independence. Their application for admission into the Union was accepted by Lincoln, and in 1863 West Virginia became the thirty-fifth state.

It is often called the "Panhandle State" on account of its shape. Its area is 24,170 square miles, and it has eight presidential electors. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

FOR WEAR EVERYWHERE

This smart day-time dress of smooth-faced wool suiting is of the sort approved by fashion for wear everywhere that suits are worn. Its lines are graceful and simple, revealing the development of draped effects in skirts. It adopts the vogue of picturesque sleeves, lined with silk in a contrasting color, and of handsome girdles of beads or metal.

Uncle Walt's Story

THE USE OF SICKNESS

"HERE is the most wonderful book ever offered the public," said the agent with enthusiasm. "It is entitled 'Psychology and Disease,' and every page has an astounding revelation. When this book is universally read and understood, there won't be any disease in the world."

"Which is equivalent to saying that when the pigs are flying, a man with the rheumatism will get a job as confectionist," said Mrs. Curfew. "I have listened to agents for many years, and have heard all kinds of silly talk, but yours is the worst yet. You can't convince me that the day will ever come when a man with the jumping rheumatism, such as my husband is afflicted with, can sit down and cure himself by reading a book, even if the book is endorsed by congressmen and justices of the peace and other dignitaries without number."

"If disease ever is banished from the world, I have no doubt that something worse will come to take its place. I believe that everything in this world is here for a good purpose, even if it doesn't look that way at first glance."

"Early this spring there was an epidemic of measles in this neighborhood, and of course my little granddaughter had to come to visit me. She never comes when the health conditions are all that could be desired, but just as sure as there is smallpox or seven year itch or some other contagious disease rampant, that angel child comes to spend a few days with her beloved grandmother, and she catches everything there is going."

"She hadn't been here two days before she was down sick. She had more measles than I ever saw in one collection before, and her face was a sight to be seen. I was inclined to murmur and repine, for I was just done with my housecleaning and was so tired I felt as though I'd like to lie down and sleep for six months, and there I was with a sick child in the house, and I was to be up night and day seeing that she didn't catch cold, for if a child catches cold when she has that disease, some of the measles are sure to strike in, and then she goes blind or loses her hearing or becomes an idiot."

"I was complaining to Mr. Curfew, and saying harsh, bitter things, when a boy came to the door with a telegram. It was from Cousin Susan, and she said she was coming on the night train with her three children to spend a week with me. She invites herself that way about once a year, and I always dread her coming, for her children are holy terrors, and there is no peace where they are."

"I never had a good excuse for heading Cousin Susan off before, and she had become a nightmare to me. But on that occasion I had an excuse all ready made. I sent back a telegram saying that my granddaughter was in the house with an aggravated attack of measles, and the house was quarantined, and a policeman with a sawed-off shotgun was guarding the approaches to the house. Of course I didn't use exactly those words, but that was the meaning of my dispatch, and Cousin Susan had to take her offspring and unload them on her Aunt Maria, who had never suffered a visitation of that sort before."

"This shows that diseases have their use, and even a few measles in the house are a wellspring of pleasure, when we regard them properly, with a determination to realize our blessings. So I have no use for any book that shows how to abolish diseases, and now must disperse, for I have a hundred things to do."

Arabs Suffer From Famine.

"The Drinkers of Sunshine," as the Arab shepherds call themselves, are on the verge of starvation throughout Algeria, and unless wheat is imported from America it may have nothing but sunshine as a steady diet during the winter.

The threatening famine is the result of a year's drought.

Seventy-five per cent of the sheep in Algeria have died as a result of the drought, and the Arab "Drinkers of Sunshine," dreamers and philosophers, incapable of any work but that of guarding their flocks, are in dire straits.

Out of Date Now.

"Did you hear what that young woman said?"

"No. What was it?"

"She told the young fellow with her that she 'just loved to cook.'"

"Ah! An old-fashioned girl. She's using the 'vamping' methods popular twenty years ago."

To Be Expected.

AN AWAKENING

By ISABELLE ENGLAND

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Mary, darling," murmured Ted. "Love me lots? Hummm? Why, what's the trouble now—what the deuce?" For his fiancée's expression had become anything but flattering. She looked, indeed, decidedly bored.

"You're a sweet boy," yawned Mary, "but really, you're horribly tiresome. One can be so sure of you. Oh, Ted! I do wish you weren't so faithful and adoring and—well—unthrilling. Now, if you'd only make love to Cynthia, next door, or something like that! I want excitement, and freedom. I want to be kidnapped by a big, bad man with rough hands, and be pulled by the hair, and kissed brutally, until—Oh-h-h—!"

Ted regarded her, open-mouthed, with a half-dazed, incredulous expression. Then his face hardened. "I'm sorry," he retorted, sneeringly no longer the meek and perfect lover but a very angry boy. "Sorry I had the great misfortune to be born respectable. Sorry I'm not a ruffian. Drag you by the hair, eh? A spanking would be more effective!"

Mary smiled, maddeningly. "Of course you can't comprehend my feelings! Your life is so shallow, so petty. Your highest ambition is to marry me. Ye gods! What have I done to deserve such a fate. If you were half a man, you'd abuse me once in a while, or do something to make life interesting."

"Mary!" Startled, but once more adoring, he knew not what to say.

"Anyhow, don't stand there gazing at me with that adoring, calf-like expression!" she scolded.

Ted was all at sea. His dignity had been completely swept away. He appeared griefed and meek, and a little uncomprehending, entirely unbelieving.

"Mary—Mary, I can't understand! I can't see what the deuce is the matter. Didn't you like the violets I brought you?" And he gave an injured glance at the discarded offering.

Mistress Mary, quite contrary, shrugged disdainfully.

"Not so bad," she answered, "but it would have been much more interesting if you'd given them to some other girl. Please run home and don't bother me any longer!"

Mary laughed gayly as Ted's dejected back passed from view at the bend of the road.

"What an utter bore!" she sighed. "I wonder if I'd look more piquant and bohemian with my hair bobbed? And Ted hates bobbed hair—Oh, could anything get him really mad, and keep him mad? Inspiration!"

"Oh, mamma! Where's my comb? And oh, yes, the scissors, too? And, mamma, you wouldn't mind getting me the hand mirror, would you? Thank you!"

Mrs. Doran, a worried-looking little woman, fidgeted nervously about her over-temperamental daughter until the latter unmistakably excused her.

"I hope you're not going to do anything rash, Mary," murmured the nervous little mother rather apologetically.

"Oh, for heaven's sake, do go away, or I certainly will!" ejaculated Mary crossly. "Can't I have a minute's peace?"

Mary yawned. Really, she was so tired!

She pondered deeply a moment. Then, her decision made, she raised the scissors gingerly and trusted to luck—the flapper's god!

Several hours later a rather different Mary tripped down the stairs—a girl with short, stiff, uneven hair, resembling nothing so much as a futurist puzzle. Mary's eyes were suspiciously red. She held her head defiantly as she swept by her horrified father and her nearly hysterical mother, to the front porch.

The stars glittered dreamily; the town was quiet. What's more, Mary felt lonely.

She smiled in self-satisfaction. Of course she would take the poor boy back—after he had sufficiently suffered and repented his stupidity. In her mind she had the reunion almost staged, when—

"You darling!" Ted's voice sounded. It was dreamy, soft. The porch swing next door, at Cynthia's house, ceased squeaking, a gurgle of delight. Then, silence—silence—

Mary gasped and groped feebly for the door. That funny feeling in her heart was almost intolerable. All her sensations seemed to grow vaguer—stranger. She fell.

Mrs. Doran, hurrying into Mary's room, discovered her daughter in a tumbled heap on the floor in front of the easy-chair from which she had just slid.

"Didn't hurt yourself, dear, did you?" inquired Mrs. Doran. "I'd have called you before, only you were sleeping so peacefully. How on earth did you happen to fall out of that chair? Bad dreams?"

Mary picked herself up and anxiously felt of her hair. As her fingers encountered the loose coils she sighed with relief.

"Did Ted call up while I was asleep?" she asked. "Yes? And he's coming over this evening? Oh, joy and thrills! Is my organdie ironed?"

"Why, bless my soul!" exclaimed Mrs. Doran. "What can have got into the girl?"

But Mary didn't answer as she skipped gayly down the stairs. For, after all, dreams have little effect on youth.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE I.—DELAWARE

TO DELE-TW ARE falls the honor of being the first of the original thirteen states. December 7, 1787, it officially adopted the Constitution and thus was made a beginning of our present Federal government. According to the seventh article of the Constitution, however, it was necessary for nine states to ratify it before it actually came into force. So it was not until the following June, by which time eight other states had accepted the Constitution, that the United States of America actually came into being.

The early history of Delaware was a varied one. It started in 1638 when a small party of Swedes settled at the mouth of the Delaware river and called it New Sweden. In 1655, Peter Stuyvesant, the governor of the Dutch colony of New Netherlands, annexed this territory. But it did not long remain Dutch, for in 1664 the English took possession. When Pennsylvania was deeded to William Penn he desired access to the seacoast and at his urgent request Delaware was transferred to Penn's proprietorship. From the beginning of the eighteenth century, however, Delaware had its separate legislature, and at the time of the Revolution it became an independent state.

Delaware is next to the smallest of our states, having an area of only 2,370 square miles. Its participation in presidential elections is limited to three electors. This is arranged according to population. Each state is entitled to the same number of presidential electors as it has members of congress, so the influence of the different states in voting for the President varies from Delaware's three electors to New York's 45.

As to the derivation of the name Delaware, this was appropriately given to the state from the river, which in turn was named after the bay and the bay was called Delaware in honor of Lord Delaware, who was governor of the Virginia colony in 1610.

SPRITLY SILK FROCKS

Any number of sprightly, new tar feta frocks came trooping in, in advance of spring, and they were perfectly sure of a welcome. Along lines similar to those in the pretty model shown here designers have made them in very great variety, suited to gay youth and varied to please charming age. In a conspiracy to make them wholly irresistible to gentlemen, lace is introduced in the sleeve or neck or both, and the silk is used in hand-made embellishments of flowers and ruchings, covered cord or straps.

The dress pictured here for afternoon, or informal wear, is a youthful model with full scalloped tunic over a plain skirt. Its elbow sleeves, of the taffeta, are lengthened by a puff of fine net ending in a band of silk at the wrist. Straps of the taffeta extend from the elbow to cuffs and roses of it are set about the tunic. The scalloped edge is finished with a silk-covered cord.

GROW CROP OF LATE CABBAGE

Land That Has Been Utilized for Peas, Potatoes or Beans is Usually Made Use of.

Late cabbage is usually grown on land that has been utilized for peas, early potatoes, or beans during the early part of the season. The seed should be sown in a seed box or a special outdoor bed four to six weeks before the plants are needed for setting. The seed should not be sown too thickly, and it is a good plan to thin the plants to an even stand in the seed bed, so they will develop uniformly. The land on which late cabbage is grown should be well fertilized, and the plants set 18 to 20 inches apart in rows three feet apart.

SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION

Theodore's Black-Draught Highly Recommended by a Tennessee Grocer for Troubles Resulting from Torpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn.—The efficiency of Theodore's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver.

"I have known and used it for years, and can and do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black-Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes—valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities.

Theodore's Black-Draught liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes. Always ask for Theodore's. E. 28

GINGHAM AND ORGANDY

There is a dainty, little girlish charm about this unusual frock made of gingham and trimmed with organdy. It shows the genius of an expert handling familiar materials. Organdy makes the narrow, plaited frills that adorn the skirt and finish the neck and sleeves. Narrow bands of it slip under slides of gingham on the bodice and tie at each side.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES AND SUGGESTIONS

The work of the orchard demonstrators is going on under the direction of the County Agent. Last week Judge J. T. Stamper sprayed his orchard the third spraying. A mixture of bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead was used.

Boys and girls are as anxious as ever to get started in the standard poultry business. About seventy-five settings of eggs were placed with club members last week.

Now is the time for parents to plan to keep their children in school this fall during "fodder pulling" time by sowing some soy beans for forage and thus get away from the wasteful practice of fodder pulling. Fodder pulled for the stocks while the corn is yet green damages the yield and quality of the corn much more than the worth of the fodder for forage. The boy or girl who must stop school for fodder pulling is not only learning a wasteful practice but is being handicapped in an effort to get an education. Parents who want to keep their children in school this fall may sow either soy beans or cowpeas for hay and have a better feed for horses or cattle and at the same time avoid taking the children out of school to pull fodder.

Reasons for sowing soy beans or cow peas will be published next week.

Dr. Klepfer is now pastor of the Pineville Methodist Church and will continue his work there after school closes for the summer.

The baseball boys are back from their four day Southern trip. All four games were hard fought but all were lost.

If the good citizens of Barbourville should happen to meet in the middle of the streets a group of young people gazing steadfastly up into the heavens any of these bright nights, the "group" is a U. C. bunch out star-gazing. Venus, Saturn, Jupiter and Mars are too glorious to be missed.

TOURNAMENT WINNERS

Following are the winners at the Tournament held at Middlesboro:

Pauline Lay, 1st prize in declamation.

Effie Smith, 2nd prize in piano solo, over 15 years.

Sadie Kelly, 2nd prize in physiology.

Stanley Faulkner, two 3rd prizes in each American History and in civics.

This is really a very good showing for the small number of entries and the little time devoted to it as it was late in the day when it was concluded to enter at all.

Over the Mountains

By CLAIRE SMITH

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Mary Seaton set down her full pail and stared over the distant hills.

She had lived all her five and twenty years in the little, sordid settlement in the plains. Ever since childhood she had longed to cross the mountains which seemed to shut her in and press on her until they became intolerable.

She knew that beyond them no man had set foot, except the wandering traders and trappers of the northwest. There lay freedom. Perhaps it was from her half-Indian mother that she inherited this love of freedom. Her father, the hard-working old Scotch farmer, had lived in the village for twenty years. He was satisfied with his lot.

The village of Elkwood lay in a valley, just below the new, huge government dam, now nearing completion, wherein all the head waters of Rock river fretted and surged. Soon they would be led out through a score of apertures to carry moisture to the thirsty fields. Mary hated the dam, because it would mean more self-satisfaction to Elkwood. With the new prosperity that it would bring there would be no hope that Joe would ever take her away.

And she hated the prison, of masonry, built at the head of the valley.

There was one man—a tall, lithe, dark-haired fellow, whose eyes seemed to her like those of a captive eagle which her father had once possessed. He was a trusty. Sometimes he drove the prison van down the hill, filled with its goods of prison making, to the railroad terminus.

After supper Joe came—Joe, with his smooth, sleek face and air of ownership. He had not courted her—he had courted her father's favor, and her father had given her to Joe.

"You'll take Joe, my lass," he said to her. "He's a good farmer and has the best land in Elkwood. You'll take him next month."

She went to bed and in her dreams she was with the eagle-eyed man of the prison. He had saved her from a crashing world, and they two stood alone together upon the crests of the mountains looking northward over the plains.

"This is our home, Mary," he said, and kissed her.

She started from her sleep. That crash had been no dream. It seemed as though the whole universe were rearing into ruin. There was the noise of a hundred avalanches.

She had barely thrust on a few clothes when her father ran screaming to the door.

"Mary! Mary!" he yelled. "The dam's burst. God help us! The water will be here in twenty seconds!"

Mary looked at him in quiet joy.

Suddenly, with the force of a battering ram, the floods smashed down upon the house, and timber and stone went crashing into a heap of rubble and splinters. The floor yielded, the floods surged and swirled around her.

She opened her eyes long afterward. It was daylight; the sun was rising over the plain and touching the tops of the hills with gold. She was lying upon a heap of what had once been beams and girders, but was now only a heap of wood, caught between two islands of masonry that rose out of the swirling flood. And all around her was water. Not a house was left in Elkwood. And where the prison had been was only a pile of shattered stone.

Suddenly she perceived something that made her heart beat quickly. Upon the other side of the pile of masonry lay the body of the prisoner. Painfully the girl crawled toward him. She bent over him, and, as she did so, his eyes opened.

"The flood!" he muttered. "Where are they?"

"They are all dead," she sobbed, and all at once the sense of desolation came upon her. Her father, tyrannical though he had been, had been all she had ever had. And they two alone survived out of a thousand.

"I was with the wagon," he muttered. "The flood struck me. I knew nothing more."

That was how he had escaped; as for those shut up in the prison, not one had survived the flood.

They managed to wade to land. They had found a box of canned meats, and flour. While they ate he told her his story. He had been a trapper; he had been arrested on a charge of burglary, trumped up by a storekeeper with whom he had quarrelled, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. He had served three-fourths of his time.

"Where will you go?" she asked.

"Home," he answered simply, pointing over the mountains. His home lay there; the plains and forests were his, and all the boundless prairies his domain.

He took her by the hand and they fared forth like two children. Each had an infinite faith in the other, for it takes two to make a home, and so there was no need for any formal questioning.

Rather Easy.

Aunt Belle called over the telephone to talk to her favorite sister. Her nine-year-old niece, Bernice, answered her call. After a brief exchange of formalities, Aunt Belle said: "I'd like to speak to your mother, or is she busy?"

"Well, she's sort of busy," Bernice returned. "She has the toothache and the baby both out on the front porch."

MARRY IN HASTE

"SAM OWLEY brought his bride home last evening," announced the horse doctor, "and they're going to begin housekeeping right away. Sam says he married the girl three days after first seeing her, and seems to think he did something pretty clever, but there's an old saying about marrying in haste and repenting at leisure."

"It's worth just about as much as the rest of the old sayings," said the village patriarch. "They're all cheap goods, and you don't get a chrome with any of them. Most married women repent at leisure, whether they married in haste or took their time about it."

"I sometimes think that the longer an unmarried woman contemplates the man she is going to marry, the less she knows about him. If there is a protracted courtship, the man has every opportunity to work up a reputation that doesn't belong to him."

"Just this morning my present wife was telling me that if she had known what sort of a man I really was she'd never have married me. Yet she had six months to study me before the wedding bells rang out their glad chimes, and she thought I was an exemplary man. I'm naturally of a slouchy disposition. I never did take much pride in my appearance, even when I was a young man, and as I waxed older I became downright careless. I considered it a waste of money and effort to have my clothes pressed, and having my shoes blacked seemed merely vanity and vexation of spirit."

"Yet when I began courting the excellent woman who is my wife, I braced up in the most surprising way. I always did that when I went courting. And the surprising thing is that it never seemed a dishonest proceeding. It never struck me, until my wife called my attention to the matter, long afterwards, that I was obtaining money under false pretenses, so to speak, when I created the impression that I was the glass of fashion and the mold of form."

"I'd go to see that woman all togged out like a young man who is billed to sing a tenor solo. I'd have my whiskers and hair trimmed, and my shoes shined, and my teeth manicured, and I'd be wearing a collar as white as the driven snow, and a handkerchief in keeping. It seemed the natural and proper thing to do, yet I was working a flimflam game with the best intentions in the world."

"The more Arabella considered me, the more she was convinced that I was a marvelously neat and tidy man, and she was so impressed that she married me without the slightest hesitation. No sooner were the last sad rites performed, however, than I lost all interest in the task of dolling myself up, and I've been a sort of scarecrow ever since."

"My wife has to remind me when it's time to change shirts or have my hair cut, and she's completely disheartened. I don't blame her in the least, for I realize now, since she has explained the matter ten thousand times, that she married a counterfeit."

"It would have been far better had she caught me when I was running wild, and married me without taking time to think the matter over. But she studied me for several months, and you see what sort of a prize package she drew."

"I believe a woman, or a man, either, will do well to trust to luck in matrimonial matters."

"Millions for Defense."

Charles C. Pinckney was one of three envoys sent by the United States to France in 1797 to settle disputes which had arisen between France and the United States. The American grievance was caused by the seizure of American vessels by France. The French grievance was that commercial privileges had been granted to England. Talleyrand, the French foreign minister, refused to receive the envoys, but it had been conveyed to them by secret agents that before any settlement could be reached it would be necessary for the United States to pay a large sum of money, which was, in fact, little more than a bribe. It was then that Pinckney made his famous declaration that the United States had "millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute."

Much Affected.

"Come, now! Don't look so miserable!" said a Tumlinville photographer. "Just pretend in your own mind that you are going to get married tomorrow."

"Dad-burn the dad-burned luck!" returned the Arkansas sinner. "That's precisely what I am going to do!"

A Real Sport.

"But, man, you would make thousands in the deal. It's a sure thing."

"Thanks! But I prefer to take a reasonable chance."

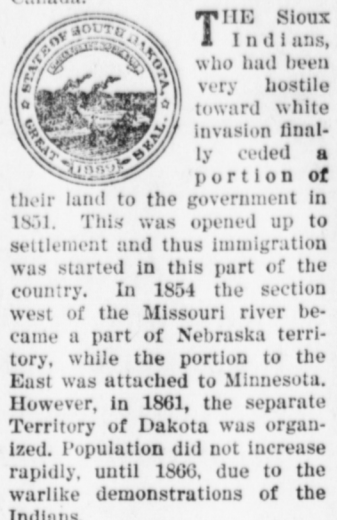

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
XXXIX.—DAKOTAS

NORTH and South Dakota formed the northern section of the Louisiana Purchase by the acquisition of which from France the United States nearly doubled its size.

The Dakotas were the last states which were made up wholly from this purchase, to become a part of the Union. Shortly after its acquisition, the Lewis and Clark expedition was sent out to explore it and they spent their first winter in 1804 near Mandan. The British had many fur posts in this region, and as they considered it part of British territory, they built a fort in 1810 near Pembina. British rights, however, were withdrawn in the Treaty of 1818, which established the formal boundary between the United States and Canada.

THE Sioux Indians, who had been very hostile toward white invasion finally ceded a portion of their land to the government in 1851. This was opened up to settlement and thus immigration was started in this part of the country. In 1854 the section west of the Missouri river became a part of Nebraska territory, while the portion to the East was attached to Minnesota. However, in 1861, the separate Territory of Dakota was organized. Population did not increase rapidly, until 1866, due to the warlike demonstrations of the Indians.

It is from these Indians that the name Dakota comes.

But it was not until 1889 that the Dakota territory was divided and formed into two states. To avoid any feeling of jealousy as to which was made a state first, the two bills were signed by President Harrison after they had been shuffled up and were then re-shuffled so it is not known which was signed first. Their areas are about the same, North Dakota containing 70,837 square miles, while South Dakota has 77,615 square miles. The population is also about equal and each is entitled to five presidential electors.

XLVI.—NEW MEXICO

AS ITS name implies, New Mexico's history is closely allied with Old Mexico. It was the Spanish who were its first explorers, De Vaca visiting this region in 1536 and Coronado four years later. The natives were the Pueblo Indians, although they are sometimes erroneously reputed to have been Aztecs as they were well advanced in the arts and had a comparatively high civilization. These Indians were conquered in 1598 by Juan de Onate and became subject to Spanish rule, being forced to work the mines and pay tribute. Missions were established and Santa Fe was founded about 1605.

Except for a period of ten years when the Indians revolted and maintained their independence, New Mexico remained under Spanish control until in 1821 Mexico gained its independence from Spain and New Mexico became a province of Mexico. Thus it remained until the outbreak of the Mexican war, when in 1846 Colonel Kearny marched from Fort Leavenworth with his troops, occupied Santa Fe and declared this region a part of the United States. By the Treaty with Mexico in 1848, the upper part of the state was formally ceded to the United States and the Territory of Mexico was organized in 1851, which reached from Texas to California.

Arizona was set off from New Mexico in 1863 and a few years later a portion was contributed to Colorado. Application for admission as a state started in 1850, but it was not until 1910 that New Mexico became the forty-seventh state.

New Mexico ranks fourth in size among the states with an area of 122,634 square miles, but is sparsely populated and accordingly has only three electoral votes for President.

The Ranger's Atonement

By CALVIN HENDRICKS

Copyright, 1922, McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Nesta had one sorrow in her life, and that was the thought of Jim Barnes. She was the daughter of a settler in the forest region of Oregon, and her father and John Anderson had both wanted her. Anderson had won. He was a successful sheep farmer, and he and Nesta loved each other devotedly. They had been married six months.

Jim Barnes was in the government service. He was a forest ranger. He was a lonely man, somewhat older than Anderson. All his life had been spent in the forests and on the plains. He loved his work; and, when Nesta rejected his suit, he went quietly back to it.

Anderson was successful because he gave his flock all his attention. In winter he kept them in the pens, but in summer he pastured them in the sweet grasses of the uplands. These long, sloping ranges rise above the surrounding forests, into which the sheep will not stray. Thus a herd can be secured, so long as the pasture holds out, within 50 acres, ranged around with trees; and every alternate day they can be moved to another of the mountain slopes.

Nesta and John and a series of little cabins all along the edge of the range. While Nesta prepared the meal in the daytime John would lie on the hill slopes, watching his flock, and smoking and dreaming of his return to Nesta.

It was during one of these days that Barnes came riding up to Nesta's cabin, where she was alone.

"Can you spare me a drink of water, ma'am?" he began. "I saw your fire smoking and thought it might be—"

Then she turned round and they recognized each other.

"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Anderson," said Barnes. "I didn't know it was you. You see, I thought the smoke from your cabin might be the beginning of a forest fire. We rangers are on the alert nowadays, owing to the dry spell."

Nesta gave him the cup of water. He drank it, raised his hat, and turned to go. Suddenly he wheeled round. His voice was hoarse with emotion.

"Nesta!" he cried, and caught her by the hands. "Nesta!"

There was an intense passion in his voice. He said no more, and, suddenly dropping her hands, he turned away.

Days passed. Nesta had said nothing to John. Barnes did not go near the cabin.

It was toward evening about three weeks later that Barnes, ascending an observation hill, perceived a line of smoke curling up from the forest edge beneath him.

He rode toward it at full gallop, but before he reached it he perceived that it was beyond one man's control. There was nothing to do but to ride to the camp, five miles away, and summon aid. He returned about nine o'clock, with a company of ten fire fighters; but by this time the heaven was alight with the lurid flames.

"There's a camp down there," said Smith, one of his men. "I think it's a sheepman's. I saw a man and woman as I rode by yesterday." He pointed toward a spot near the lower slope of the hill. "You got them out, of course?" he continued.

Barnes stared at him one moment. Then:

"Take charge, Smith," he said. "I'm going to see about them." He spurred his horse and rode off at full gallop.

He dared not think it might be Nesta.

In their cabin Nesta and John were sleeping. John stirred in his sleep and muttered. Nesta heard him, but she did not know that death was upon them. A hand pulled at her shoulder. She muttered drowsily. She opened her eyes. Barnes was standing over her, but in her benumbed state it occasioned no surprise.

She felt herself lifted in his arms. A moment later, and Barnes was dashing away to safety, and when Nesta came back to consciousness, they were safe over the river bank, and on the opposite edge was an inferno of flame.

"John! John!" he cried, at last understanding.

But Barnes was already gone. She waited in an agony of suspense. Then out of the forest a horse came plunging, and on its back were two figures.

One was Barnes, and before him, upon the saddle, swathed in a smoldering blanket, and supported by Barnes' arm, was John. Neither man was badly hurt. The blanket had protected John, though he was still stupefied by the smoke, but Barnes' hair and eyebrows were scorched, and his clothes were tinder. As Nesta ran forward Anderson opened his eyes.

"Nesta!" he murmured feebly, and clasped her in his arms.

Barnes turned quickly away. He knew that he had atoned, and that the hell of his heart was quenched in the waters of self-control. Still, he did not want to let John and Nesta thank him.

The Ruling Passion.

"Fore," yelled the golfer. The lady who was in his way paid no attention.

"Three ninety-eight," he yelled. Immediately she jumped up and took notice.

There are about as many rats as there are people in the United States.

15 CENTS FOR A SHINE

Stories of Service: A couple of men met in a shoe-shining place recently, and the talk soon turned on high prices.

"I don't mind a high price for a service that is worth a high price," said one, "but I don't know of anything that makes me so mad as to be compelled to pay five cents for laundering a collar."

"I used to feel pretty much the same way about it," answered the other, until one day when I happened to be talking on this same subject in this very place."

"When our shoes had been shined we not only paid ten cents for each shine but each of us gave a nickel as a tip to each of the boys."

"As we stepped outside both of us thought of the same thing at the same time, and we couldn't help but laugh. Here we had been kicking about paying five cents for the service a public laundry renders in laundering a collar, and the very next moment had paid 15 cents for a shine without giving the matter any thought at all."

"We took a few moments to analyze the two kinds of service. We brought our own shoes to this place. The laundry sends an auto truck to our homes for our collars. A couple of hundred dollars represents the total equipment of this shoe-shining place. More than $200,000 represents the investment of a laundry like the one which I patronize."

"It took this boy who has to depend on tips for the greater part of his wages about three minutes to shine my shoes. The laundry calls for the collar, washes it, starches it, irons it, wraps it up carefully and then delivers it back to my home—an operation involving several hours of time—and charges me only one-third of what I willingly pay for a shine."

The other man held up his hand. "That argument ticks me," he said. "Here's where I quit kicking against paying five cents for laundering a collar. I suppose I ought to be thankful that the price isn't any higher."

Send them to the Barbourville Steam Laundry and do not kick about the price.—Adv.

MINE FOREMAN

The State Mining Board will meet in Lexington May 30 to examine Mine Foremen.

NEW FIRE TRUCK ARRIVES

On Monday the new fire fighting truck, which is a combination chemical and water fire fighter, was delivered to the city for future use. Guy L. Dickson is captain of the fire crew and with others of the boys was putting the truck thru its paces. It will deliver 1,800 gallons of water within from ten to fifteen minutes. By the use of the chemicals water damage can be reduced seventy-five per cent. The truck will be kept at the Buchanan Motor garage ready for instant action.

The city is to be congratulated on its purchase of this efficient machine which should materially keep down fire damage.

Capt. Sultz, fire chief of the Kentucky Actuarial Bureau will be here within the next few days to give instruction in fire fighting and life saving which instructions will be without cost to the city.

OPENS FOR BUSINESS

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Carnes, brother of Sheriff J. M. Carnes, returned Sunday from a flying trip to New York, which is old stamping ground for Mr. Carnes who lived there for nineteen months while a sailor in the United States Navy.

Mr. Carnes will open a retail general merchandise and feed store in the Locke Building near the L. & N. R. R. The opening will be about June 1st.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

OWNS UP TO ITS AGE
The First National Bank is just twenty years of age and has received its new charter which extends its activities up to May 4th, 1942.

The bank was founded by a number of prominent citizens, John G. Matthews being its first president and Wm. Locke its first cashier. The population was about 800 to 1,000 when the bank was founded; now it is over 3,000. The next president was Judge F. D. Sampson, at the present time one of the judges of the Court of Appeals for Kentucky, with Robert W. Cole elected cashier in 1907. Congressman J. M. Robison was elected president in 1910 and held the office until 1922 when Robert W. Cole was elected president with W. E. McNeil cashier.

The First National Bank has been a great power for good in the community and has contributed very largely to the growth of the community. Among the projects that it has fostered is the endless chain pig club, the pure bred poultry club and the pure bred bull club. All these things have helped to bring about a better class of stock and of poultry in Knox County, which we feel assured, has affected the prosperity of the farmer and thru him the community at large.

The importance of local banks is not sufficiently recognized as real builders of a town and county. With out their assistance many projects which make for better times and which give work to our people would die for lack of capital did not the local banks step in and furnish the necessary money to carry them along to success.

It is a truism that to succeed is to go into debt and it is largely the banks to whom men go to borrow money wherewith to carry on their business.

The banker is neither a grouch nor a money-grabber. On the contrary, he is a very human person who wishes every man to succeed and is always ready to lend money for his enterprise to the upright and honorable man when there is a chance to make a business go.

Its many friends wish the best of prosperity to the First National Bank during the next twenty years of its new charter and for many years after that. It has a fine record for generosity and helpfulness toward its city and county.

Long may it prosper.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN CHURCH BELIEVES

I. This world was originally created very good.—Gen. 1:31. Ps. 104:24. Eccl. 3:11. Job 38:4-7.

II. This world and its creatures have been, in consequence of man's sin, subjected to sorrow, curse and vanity.—Gen. 3:17-19. Eccl. 2:17, 22, 23; Rom. 8:22, 23; Eccl. 1:2-8.

III. There is yet to be a glorious state of affairs on earth, when sin and sorrow shall cease.—Num. 14:21. Ps. 72:18, 19. Is. 11:9, 40:5, 55:12-13.

IV. The world will never be converted by the Gospel, but will continue perverse and ungodly till Jesus Christ comes in Judgement.—1 Tim. 3:1, 12, 13; 2 Pet. 3:8; Matt. 13:24-30, 36-43; Dan. 7:21, 22; Matt. 24:14.

V. This earth will be melted and purified by fire.—Duet. 32:22; Is. 64:1, 2; Mal. 4:1-4; 2 Pet. 3:7, 10, 12.

VI. The globe is to be restored, renewed and made glorious by the power of God.—Is. 35:1, 2; 65:17-19; Matt. 19:28; Is. 51:16; 66:22; Acts 3:19-21; Heb. 2:5; 2 Pet. 3:13-14; Rev. 21:1-5.

VII. The promise of an heavenly country made to Abraham and his seed has never been fulfilled, nor will it be until the restoration of the earth and the resurrection of the just.—Gen. 13:14-17; 28:13; Ps. 105:8-12; Rom. 4:13; Gal. 3:29; Heb. 11:8-16, 39, 40; Acts 7:2-5; Ezek. 37:11-14.

VIII. God shall establish an eternal kingdom on the earth where Christ shall reign forever with His saints.—Dan. 2:44; 7:13, 14, 27; Is. 9:6-7; 24:23; Jer. 23:5-6; Ezek. 21:26-27; Luke 1:32-33; Matt. 25:31-34; 2 Tim. 4:1; Rev. 11:15-18; Matt. 6:9-10.

IX. The saints' eternal home and heritage is to be, not in heaven, but on a renewed earth.—Job 19:25-26 Ps. 37:22, 29, 34; Prov. 2:21-22; 11:31; Is. 60:18, 21; Mal. 4:1-3; Matt. 5:5; 2 Pet. 3:13; Rev. 21:1-7; 5:9-10.

X. Therefore the saints do not obtain their rewards and crowns and glory in heaven at death, but in this kingdom of Jesus at His coming.—Eccl. 9:4-6; Is. 30:18-19; Ps. 115:17; 17:15; Is. 40:10; 62:11; Luke 14:13-14; Matt. 25:31-34; John 3:13; 7:33-34; 8:21; 13:33; 14:1-3; Acts 2:34; Col. 3:3-4; 2 Tim. 4:7-8; 1 Pet. 1:6-7; 4:12-13; 5:4; Rev. 22:12.

XI. Therefore the coming of Jesus in His glory is the hope of the church and should ever be desired by them.—1 Cor. 15:16-18; Rom. 8:22-23; Phil. 3:20-21; Acts 24:14-15; 26:6-8; 23:6; 2 Cor. 5:4; Heb. 9:27-28; 1 Thess. 1:9-10; 2; 19; 4:13-18; 1 John 3: 2-3; Luke 12:35-40; Titus 2:11-15.

XII. Living in the last of the "last days," we have special reasons to expect the sudden coming of our Lord to judgment and should ever watch and be ready. Heb. 1:1-2; Acts 2:16-17; Phil. 4:5; Jas. 5:7-9 1 John 2:18; Matt. 24:33, 44; 25; 13; Mark 8:33-35; Luke 21:34-36; 1 Thess. 5:4-6; 2 Pet. 3:11-14.

XIII. The punishment of the wicked will be everlasting destruction. 2 Thess. 1:7; Matt. 3:11-12; Mal. 4:1-3.

How much do you know about Adventism?

Look up the scripture references given above in the creed of the Advent Christian Church and see if you think these passages of scripture teach what the church believes.

Ask your preachers and teachers if they can get a different meaning from these passages of scripture than the meaning given to them by the Adventists.—Adv. 29-1
